DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3 and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kurihara et al., Pub. No. 2003/0086800.

Kurihara discloses a compressor with a compression portion 20 and a motor 30 in housing divided into an inverter attachment side 11 and another side 13 with an inverter (p. 2, ¶ 31) in an inverter case formed as the space between connection plate 50 and lid 15 attached to end wall 11d of inverter attachment side by bolts 14 and 16 on the side of suction port 56, there being an intake passage between connection plate 50 and partition wall 11b and an air layer between connection plate 50 and motor 30 (fig. 1), heat being transferred from the inverter to the flow through partition wall 11b which thereby acts as a thermal binding portion, and connection pin 41 of a connection terminal is directly connected to circuit board 40 and has a seal portion 42 inside housing 11. It is not explicitly shown but inherent that the partition wall 11b is adjacent to as much area of the inverter in order to best transfer heat from the inverter to the flow (p.3, ¶ 39).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 8 and 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kurihara.

Kurihara discloses all the limitations substantially as claimed and as described above except for the following: an inverter case externally attached to an end wall of the housing on a discharge side of the compression mechanism.

However, because shifting the position of the inverter case from the suction side to the discharge side would not modify the operation of the compressor system, this limitation is found to be a mere rearrangement of parts and is therefore unpatentable. See MPEP §2144.04(6)(c).

Claims 4 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kurihara in view of Makino et al., 6,808,372.

Kurihara discloses all the limitations substantially as claimed except for the following taught by Makino: mounting legs 34 provided in the housing for mounting the compressor in order to reduce the axial dimensions of a compressor/motor combination (col. 1, ll. 50-58).

Art Unit: 3746

Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Kurihara with Makino to reduce the axial dimensions of the compressor/motor assembly (col. 1, ll. 50-58)
